

Namur Falls And Germans Continue To Advance Toward Second Line Of Defense

REPORTS FROM GREAT BATTLE SHOW KAISER'S TROOPS WON VICTORY IN INITIAL FIGHTING.

CENSORED REPORTS ARE MEAGRE

Estimate of Loss Not Given But Everything Shows Allies Failed to Check Onward March of Invaders.

Namur, the Belgium fortress, has fallen into German hands, according to an announcement made by the official press bureau in London.

Details of fighting were not given, but the English newspapers regard the fall as inexplicable.

Berlin dispatches say that five of the forts of Namur and the city itself have fallen and the capture of the remaining four forts is imminent.

A reverse to the forces of the Allies is generally admitted by the British and French newspapers which say today's news is "decidedly bad," while plainly expressing its disappointment at the failure of their forces, they declare the retrograde movement toward the line of strong defensive works near the frontier has been carried out in good order.

It is assumed that the Allies are falling back on their first line of defensive works running from Maubegkin, a southeasterly direction by way of Hirson, Metz, Verdun, St. Mihiel, Toul and Epinal, all of which are strong fortresses and are interspersed with a number of smaller ones.

Behind these lies another strong main body of German troops who have proceeded on their way to the front.

Russian reports relate the advance of the Russian armies in Eastern Prussia and the surprisingly rapid movement of the troops.

Dispatches from the Serbian provisional capital, Nish, record the victorious offensive movement of the Serbian and Montenegrins against the Austrians who are said to have suffered very severely.

A Swiss business man reports the garrison of Strassburg to have sustained an appalling total of casualties at Schirmeck, where of five thousand five hundred Germans, who were sent into the engagement, only 1800 returned.

Paris, August 25.—3:05 P. M.—The following official announcement was made here today:

"The German offensive movement in the north which was stopped yesterday appears today to have been resumed.

"The enemy, however, is being held back by a French army acting in conjunction with an English army and a Belgian army.

"The armies of the allies surprised the enemy and drove back their advanced detachment. The allies have gone beyond Malines.

"The Belgian army came from Antwerp."

Fear Worst.

London, August 25.—12:35 P. M.—"Yesterday was a day of bad news and we fear more must follow," the brought to earth succeeded in dropping seven or eight bombs into Antwerp. One of the houses wrecked by these missiles was situated three hundred yards from the palace of King Albert. Seven persons were killed and six seriously injured by this explosion. Some other houses were demolished by the falling bombs.

Wrecked Hospital.

One bomb partly wrecked the hospital of St. Elizabeth, but fortunately there were no patients in the building. The bombs exploded with terrific force and threw the inhabitants of Antwerp into a state bordering on panic.

There is intense indignation in Antwerp at the attack upon the hospital which was flying the red cross flag.

Tells of Fight.

Paris, August 25.—A traveler who has come to Paris from Charleroi has related to a reporter of the Petit Parisien as follows:

"I was at Foreux, fifteen miles from Enghien. This region is covered with a thick growth of trees. From where I was stationed I could see the passing of hours of column after column of German infantry. They were subjected by a terrific rain of shot and shell and were driven forward to take the place of the slain.

"Ot Solere-Le-Chateau I saw a German aeroplane brought down by a well directed shot and I was told that another such machine met a like fate at Nerles."

Russian Victory.

Paris, August 25.—12:40 P. M.—A dispatch from St. Petersburg sets forth that Russian troops following up their advantages in Galicia have captured several passes south of Tarnopol on the Sereth river.

A division of Austrian cavalry had been routed in Galicia at a point close to the frontier. The Russians captured two batteries of artillery and two hundred prisoners.

Germans Take Namur.

Berlin, by wireless to the Associated Press by way of the Nauen station, and Sayville, Long Island, Aug. 25.—An official announcement made public here today says that the city of Namur and five of its forts have been captured by the Germans. The bombardment of the other four forts continues and their fall seems imminent.

Admitted in London.

London, 3:55 p. m., Aug. 25.—The official war information bureau says: "It is announced that Namur has fallen."

The above dispatch as indicated was filed in London at 3:52 o'clock yesterday afternoon and received in New York this (Tuesday) morning. Its transmission was probably delayed by the censor.

Reverses Explanated.

Commenting on the fall of Namur before the Germans, the Times says that it is one of those inexplicable events which makes war the game of chance. That Namur should have fallen in two days will require a great deal of explanation, the Times adds.

Strong Fortifications.

The fortifications of Namur and Liege formed the finest examples of the work of the famous Belgian military engineer, General Henri Alexis Brialmont, whose reputation was worldwide.

The works of Namur were not so strong as those of Liege, but the position of the city was much better for military purposes.

The forts are nine in number, the four most important being St. Heribert, Audave, St. Anne, and Cognée. While the connected forts of least strength are Dave, Malzeret, Malonne, Marchevolle and Emilles.

All are protected by hardened steel domes, generally eight or nine in each fort, and the artillery consisting of modern heavy disappearing guns, is very powerful.

Battle Now Waging.

London, Aug. 25.—A dispatch to the Express from Ostend says: "A great battle has been in progress in the province of Belgium, since Friday evening. French and British troops have been engaged in desperate combat north of Charleroi and Fleurus with Germans who crossed the Meuse at Huy."

Saturday, French troops which had spread from Liège met the German's right in East Flanders.

A dispatch to the Times from Ostend sent today says that 30,000 Germans are attacking Malines, a Belgian city thirteen miles southeast of Antwerp. The fighting is general in northwest Flanders.

Basel, Switzerland, Aug. 25.—News has reached here that a French force of 7000, Zouaves and Senegalese during the fighting in upper Alsace destroyed and almost destroyed the towns of Flachaladen, Jagdorf, Landser, Brunstatt, Helweiler and Morschweiler.

Wounded French soldiers who have crossed the Swiss frontier and are interned here, speak highly of the bravery of the German troops. They say the German soldier thinks nothing of his life in an effort to gain a victory.

AUSTRIANS DRIVEN BACK BY SERBIANS

Sabac Is Re-occupied by Serbian Troops As Austrians Are Driven Back.

Nish, Serbia, Aug. 25.—Serbian troops re-occupied Sabac at four o'clock in the afternoon of Monday, Aug. 24, according to an official announcement made today.

The Austrians have been thrown back on the other bank of the river Save and every bit of Serbian territory has now been cleared of the enemy. The authorities add that the retreating Austrians devastated Serbian villages and massacred the inhabitants.

Sabac is on the river Save, twenty-seven miles from Belgrade.

The Serbs are preparing to wage a war of no quarter to her enemies is indicated in a note sent by Serbia to the French Government protesting against the alleged order from the headquarters of the Austrian army to burn Serbian crops and to fire Serbian villages all along the Austrian line of march.

The note says further that in view of the attitude to Serbian troops it will be very difficult to restrain the Serbians from measures of revenge and that the Serbian government finds itself constrained to take all measure of reprisals compatible with international law.

GERMAN ADVANCE IS WEST TOWARD PARIS

German Embassy's Foreign Office Sends Dispatch Announcing Kaiser's Intentions.

Washington, Aug. 25.—A concentrated advance of all the German armies toward Paris is probable, the Semola river, Longwy and the greater part of the Belgium-French frontier being in German hands, according to a wireless dispatch to the German embassy from its foreign office, received today via Sayville, Long Island. It says:

The German troops facing the French troops defeated them in battle August 17 to 21. Numerous ensignes, more than 150 guns and 10,000 prisoners have been captured.

Luneville has been taken and the army of General Joffre, broken up, is no more capable of action. The German crown prince's army has chased the French west of Longwy.

The army of the Duke of Wurtemberg, marching through Belgium, has crossed the river Semola, completely crushing the advancing French army. Numerous guns, ensignes, prisoners and several generals were captured.

The German troops advanced west of the Meuse, toward Maubeuge, defeated an English cavalry brigade. A concentric advance of all the German army toward Paris is probable.

BADGERS IN FLIGHT GET OUT OF RUSSIA

Judge Hastings and Wife of Green Bay Have Thrilling Trip From Finland to Stockholm.

Stockholm August 25.—Via London a story of thrilling adventures in Finland is told by members of a party of twelve Americans who arrived here from Hersons on their way from Russia back to America. Judge S. Hastings and Mrs. Hastings of Green Bay, Wis., were among those who party told of the journey one of the Americans said.

"Our party left Stockholm July 31 on a steamer for St. Petersburg, but were stopped by a Russian war ship and compelled to put in at Hango."

Trip to Stockholm.

"Starting for Stockholm by train we traveled in cars already crowded with refugees. Arriving at Helsingfors, we found at least 3,000 persons waiting for the next train north. The town was already filled and people were sleeping on the stairs of the overflowing hotels and in the park. We finally found lodgings in the Sautrium outside the town. The day we continued our trip in a train loaded with Germans who had been expelled from the country. We next arrived at Solovjoki, a hamlet near Tammerfors, which boasts of only one hotel which was trying to entertain 5,000 strangers. We went on to Nicolaistadt a seaport fifty miles to the west and found comfortable lodgings. On August 5 we sailed from Nicolaistadt on an American freight steamer. The voyage was dangerous as all the heavy lights had been removed from the passage outward which is narrow and made hazardous by shoals. We arrived, however, without accident at Hersons."

Treatment in Russia.

Our trip through Finland had exciting moments but we were not ill treated by the Russians. Ours was the only party which was not treated in this manner and traffic from Nicolaistadt was stopped on the day after we sailed and all tourists were forced to continue their journey by rail across the country. We remained in Stockholm until September 12 when we will continue our journey by canal to Gothenberg. On September 21 we will sail from Copenhagen for the United States."

The American minister, Ira Nelson Morris, with his family, has arrived here after a good voyage from England to Bergen, Norway. He stated that he was glad to become acquainted with Sweden because of the large number of Swedish living in America.

Denver, Aug. 25.—The twenty-two officers and men of the national guard of Colorado tried by court martial on charges growing out of the Ludlow battle of April 20th, were acquitted in the findings made public today.

The militia men were charged with murder, manslaughter, arson and larceny. In some cases the number of towns against one individual were high. In addition Lieutenant K. E. Linderfelt, was charged with assault upon Tikas, leader of the Greek strikers, who was killed in the Ludlow fight. The court martial found that Linderfelt struck Tikas on the head with a rifle, but that the provocation was such that the assault was justified.

line of fortifications from St. Quentin in the north through Laon and Reims to the great entrenched camp at Chalons.

The English newspapers declare that both the English and Russians are determined to "fight to a finish", whatever the outlook may be at present. They say the possession of Namur was vital for Germany and that it was "a fine stroke for the Germans to have rushed the place under the eyes of the allied armies."

In other parts of Belgium fighting is still in progress and a report from Ostend says thirty thousand Germans have attacked Malines thirteen miles from Antwerp.

Twenty-five thousand Germans have been surrounded between Courtrai and Anseghem, according to an Ostend dispatch to the London daily Express.

LOOK FOR ARMY WORM WITH COLORED WING

United States Department of Agriculture Requests Public's Assistance in Extirpation of Pest.

Washington, D. C., August 25.—Everyone interested in the destruction of the army-worm pest is being requested by the United States Department of Agriculture to look out for army-worm moths with one artificially-colored wing. The Department's entomologists are catching army-worm moths where they are plentiful, coloring one wing of each, and then liberating them in the same territory so that they may determine whether these moths directly west or north, and how quickly and far they will spread. A better knowledge of the habits of this pest should enable the Department to control its spread. No moths are to be let loose where their liberation could possibly add to the natural damage.

The moths are already showing themselves in Virginia and in Maryland, and the Department's agents are catching specimens at Portsmouth and Charlottesville in Virginia, and Hagerstown in Maryland. The agents at Portsmouth are applying a red stain to one wing of each specimen caught, while the agents at Charlottesville are applying a blue stain. The moths are to be let loose where their liberation could possibly add to the natural damage.

How to Recognize the Moth. The wings of the army-worm moth, when outspread, measure about 1 1/2 inches from tip to tip. The body is about half this length. The general shape of the moth with its wings outspread is triangular. The moths hover about the lights in the evening. On farms, they will be found on the outside of screens and doors at night. They will probably not be observed in the daytime. On dark, hot, close nights, such as precede thunder storms, they will probably be especially noticeable.

The army-worm pest has caused considerable damage to the crops and lawns this summer throughout the northern United States east of the Mississippi. The worms are only now disappearing in Northern Maine and Michigan, which are probably hatched from the eggs of moths migrating from more southern portions of the country. The additional knowledge that this experiment will give, the Department hopes to control the spread of the pest more completely in coming years.

FOREIGN MUSIC AND INSTRUMENTS SCARCE

Lyons and Healy and Other Music Houses Issue Notice to Local Dealers.

Both the Wisconsin Music company and the Music Shop of this city, have received notifications from Lyons and Healy and other prominent musical houses in the country, relative to the scarcity of foreign musical publications and instruments. The war crisis in Europe is designated as the cause for the lack of supply, which is limited at the present time.

Foreign born writers of musical classics are unable to have their productions exported from their respective countries. Much of the old violin makers of the autocratic nations are barely making a living in the report. The music business in Europe is tied up badly, according to the notices received.

Mrs. C. H. Plummer and son, Ralph of Ludlow, Kentucky, are visiting with Mrs. W. H. Groat, on Glen street.

Mrs. Plummer and Mrs. Groat are sisters.

Not often does such an opportunity as is presented to us now. Not often is such a duty laid upon the elector, as that which now confronts us. Seldom has democracy been put to such a test as the present time. The Home Rule and Tax Payers' League wishes here and now to urge you to take advantage of this opportunity, to faithfully and fearlessly discharge this duty to prepare for the test, so you be not caught unprepared.

When the interests of between two and three millions of people are vitally affected, they should act carefully, fearlessly and promptly. When you want more commissions, more offices, more salaried officials, if you want to destroy what little there is left of local self-government, vote to continue the present system, vote to keep the same men in power, but this with your eyes open, and with a knowledge of the facts.

If, on the other hand, you do not want these things, if you want reasonable, fair taxation, if you do not want to support and aid an army of office holders, if you want a real democracy, under which the people will enjoy the privilege of managing their own affairs, under and according to same, and wisely enacted legislation, then you know now to bring about the needed change, by adopting new policies, and selecting new officials. Do not be deceived. It is not a question of La Follette against McGovern, or of McGovern against Morris, or of Morris against anyone else. It is not a question of which of the ten (think of it) candidates for the United States senator, or which of the candidates for governor shall be chosen. Not at all. In presence of the issue we now have to meet, men are as nothing. The great fundamental principles of government are at stake.

But it is briefly, do you want a democracy, or a bureaucracy? Do you want the people to be free or to be under guardianship? Can you trust the average intelligence of our citizens to manage the affairs of state, or do you want all public business turned over to a few experts? And such experts! The League makes it's appeal to your intelligence, to your candor, to your patriotism, to your sense, to your common American manhood. At the coming election forget that you are partisan, forget factional strife, and remember only that you are Wisconsin men, determined to bring back to this state real, popular government.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is a new and dreaded disease that has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. This Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing her work. The proprietors have so much faith in this cure that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for a free copy of the book. Address F. J. CHENEY & CO., Toledo, Ohio. WISCONSIN'S BOXING LAW IS SUCCESSFUL

High Standard is Reached, Annual Report is Presented Today by Linger—$14,000 Benefit.

Milwaukee, Wis., August 25.—"Boxing under the control of the State Athletic commission had reached its highest standard," said W. H. Linger, chairman of the commission in presenting his annual report today. It has also demonstrated that the commission is more than self-sustaining. The state derived almost $14,000 from this department for the year.

The commission exacts 5 per cent of the gross receipts of each boxing match held under its direction. Expenses of the body, including the secretary's salary, are not allowed to amount over $3,000 per annum. The state therefore is enriched by about $11,000 through its control of this branch of athletics.

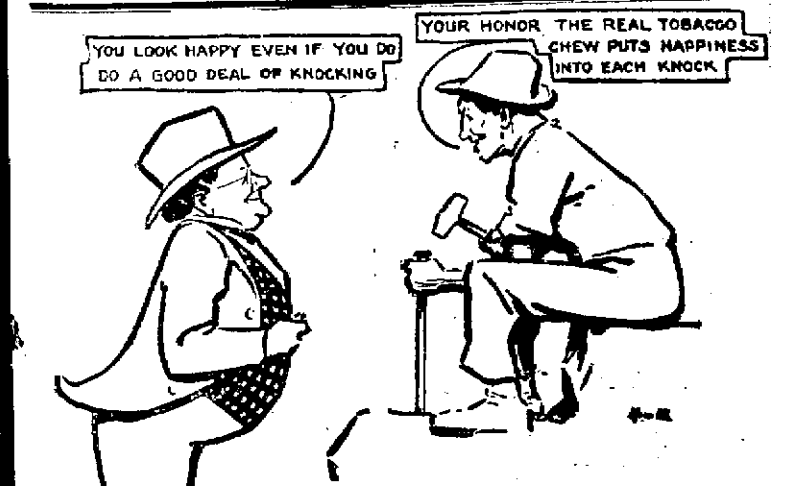

Last year boxing clubs held 132 matches in Wisconsin, averaging four bouts to the show. Ten boxers were suspended or barred from the state during the twelve months. Among these was Packer McFarland who was adjusted guilty of stalling.

That famous trio of world's series pitchers, Bender, Plank and Combs, will in all probability perform again this fall. Already Bender and Plank are showing themselves fit for the annual struggle and the form Combs has displayed of late has convinced many that he will be able to do his part in bringing the championship banner home to Philadelphia for another season.

Last year Combs was unable to be active in the large encounter, being prone on his back at a hospital at the time the series was being played. Plank and Bender were there, however, and there is little doubt that they will be present again this fall. These three deserve the reps they have won as the greatest world series performers of all time. Since 1910, when the Athletics first acquired the habit of winning world's series, these three have all been largely responsible. Combs in the several times he has taken part has won four world series and lost none. Bender has won five and lost two, while Plank has broken even with two won and two lost.

Among others who are being credited with the recent brilliant success of the Boston Braves the fans

THE ROCK DRILLER DRILLS THE GOOD JUDGE

IT'S a glad day for a tobacco chewer when he finds the Real Tobacco Chew. "Right-Cut" is made of rich, mellow, full-bodied tobacco. Seasoned and sweetened just enough.

Knowing how much it means to his comfort a man takes pleasure in telling his friends about it, too.

You don't have to grind it away. The taste lasts.

Take a very small chew—less than one-quarter the old size. It will be more satisfying than a mouthful of ordinary tobacco. Just nibble on it until you find the strength chew that suits you. Tuck it away. Then let it rest. See how easily and evenly the real tobacco taste comes, how it satisfies without grinding, how much less you have to spit, how few chews you take to be tobacco satisfied. That's why it is The Real Tobacco Chew. That's why it costs less in the end.

It is a ready chew, cut fine and short shred so that you won't have to grind on it with your teeth. Grinding on ordinary hand-cut tobacco makes you spit too much.

One small chew takes the place of two big chews of the old kind.

ANNOUNCE WISCONSIN GRIDIRON SCHEDULE

Illinois is Met for First Time Since 1907.—Chicago Team Not As Strong as Last Season.

Wisconsin University football authorities have announced the complete gridiron schedule for the coming season, Sept. 21st being set as the opening practice day throughout the "big nine" conference.

The Badgers look upon Minnesota as the hardest opponents as the season. Chicago's chances of the season, the Badgers look very as the jury returns with a verdict of doubtful on the horizon of success, not guilty. There are six parts to this picture play, which made triumph after triumph in the larger cities.

The Devil's Shop.

He who has no mind to trade with the devil should be so wise as to keep away from his shop.

Chicago Looks Weak.

Chicago's chances for the "big nine" title this fall lies in a sea of doubt. Having lost Norrgren, Goettler and Pierce, not to speak of Baumgartner and other shiners, Coach Page, assisting Stagg, is experiencing a hard time in selecting possible winners for the various vacant positions. Captain Des Jardien, all-American center last year, "Dolly" Gray, halfback, "Pete" Russell, quarterback, Shall, tackle, and Sparks and Stegeman, ends, are back to form the nucleus for a winning combination. Moulton, utility backfield man last year, will don a uniform. John Albert, a 220-pound former Wendell Phillips star, is slated for a guard job, while practically new and inexperienced men will fill the other places.

Chicago's winning champs of 1913 will be the Maroon's last winning gridiron eleven for some years to come, believe many followers of the game.

CHAPTER XVII.

Playing the Game. Young Mrs. Reynolds lounges before a log fire in the Reynolds' new home. A cheery fire that casts bright rays about a scene of comfort and ease. Something of the joy of living seems to have come into the life of the Reynolds. Why not? For Bob has taken a hand and is playing in the game. Their house is in the fashionable north shore suburb, not far from the Brandes. Less pretentious than their benefactor's, for Bob is a pupil and Brand a past master of the system's ways. But a year has passed and, judging from appearances, young Reynolds is doing very well. By the light from a handsome electric lamp he is perusing the market page of an evening paper.

"Bob, dear," his wife reminded him, "you must dress. The Brands will be here any minute in their car."

He had laid down the paper and looked at her.

"Always their car," he answered, petulantly. "What's the matter with ours?"

"Nothing, dear, but you know the limousine is better. The nights are getting cold. Besides, if we sit in their box, why shouldn't we go over with them?"

"Sure, why not? Brand's box. Brand's car. Brand's money. Why not?"

Mrs. Reynolds lifted some folds of silk and lace and got up. She put a bare soft arm around her husband's neck and caressed his cheek.

"Why, honey, you're almost cross to-night. What's the matter, did you have a bad day?"

"Oh, not particularly, but why can't we leave the Brands out of it once in a while? It's Brand this and Brand that till it gets on my nerves."

"Well, dear," she replied, "we'll have a little party all our own tomorrow night, but when we go to the opera we can't ignore their box. You wouldn't have me sit anywhere else with this on, would you?"

She courted and paraded before him to show the bird in all its glory.

"No," he agreed, "you are well worth looking at and I'm sure I don't want to hide you. But I wish I had a box of my own. What are they singing tonight?"

"Mignon Lescart."

"Another of those gruesome tragedies. Don't they ever have anything

"You're Well Worth Looking At"

Pleasant in opera? Somebody's always dying or stealing another man's wife, or trying to and it gets tiresome; makes me feel like a drink to get cheered up on, and I think I'll have one now.

He pressed a button.

"Frieda," he ordered, "bring some brandy and ice."

It was the same but a transformed Frieda. Flaxen braids are curled and crimped and the gingham apron is no more. Dress, black and tight fitting with a low cut "V." Short enough to show silk stockings and a pair of pretty pumps. And no more the slovenly shuffle, or the "yesum" and "yessir."

She moves softly like a human automaton and brings Bob's liquor without a word.

"I don't like to see you drink like that before going out," said Jane.

"I'm not lecturing, but it seems to me that you're getting pretty liberal with your brandies. Wouldn't afterwards do?"

"Nonsense," he answered. "Any man who sits through an opera is entitled to a stimulant, both afterwards and before."

"You don't mean that, Bob. You like opera as much as I, but you won't admit it."

"Do I?" he said. "Well, maybe, I do. Sometimes I have a hard time telling just what I do like these days."

He poured out his liquor and stood up, holding the glass aloft.

"Jane," he said impulsively, "I'll give you a toast. Here's to Dick!"

She started at the name and her look conveyed all the surprise she did not express.

"Yes, Dick," he repeated. "Don't you ever think of him?"

"Why, yes—I don't know, Bob. What made you think of him? We haven't seen him for a year."

"I know it, Jane. Not since that night on the island. That's one of the things we didn't keep—Dick's friendship. I haven't seen him in person, but I've seen him in my dreams; day dreams and night."

"Well, I'm sure he could find us if he wanted to. He can't blame us if he's broken off the friendship."

"No, he can't blame us," Reynolds answered, "and I don't believe we can blame him."

He sat down and poured another brandy. Just before he had taken it they heard Brand's car approaching. Jane pulled at his sleeve.

"Now, you see," she said, "they're here and you're not dressed. Hurry, won't you, dear?"

don't want to dictate. He seems so nervous of late and sometimes almost queer."

"I know, but that isn't any good for the nerves, or the nerve, either. Check him up a bit. I tell you he's hurting himself and injuring his chances. I hear he lost quite a lot in the street today. Oh, nothing serious," he added quickly, as Jane looked up in alarm. "But I don't like to see a man carrying a handicap. The race is hard enough as it is. I like a drop of wine with my dinner or after the show, but I let it go at that. Bob's a hard worker and a hard player and if he's going to drink he'll be a hard drinker. He can't do anything by halves."

"Why don't you speak to him about it?" Jane asked.

"I did, but he cut me off as I knew he would. Bob wants my tips on the market, but that's about all the advice he requires from me nowadays."

Mrs. Brand stood patiently by wondering if anyone was going to take any notice of her. She wished Bob would hurry for she had never found that his propensity for brandy affected his gait.

To her way of thinking young Reynolds was an ideal husband. Not quite so imposing or important as her own, perhaps, but so attentive and thoughtful. Bob usually made himself very agreeable to Mrs. Brand. Sometimes he seemed extremely so. But, of course, that was only as it should be. It was his way with women and if he seemed especially gracious to the wife of the man who had done so much for him, it was only natural.

Mrs. Brand, surveying Jane's new opera gown, spoke in tones of apparent sincerity.

"How beautiful you look tonight, my dear."

"Do you like it?" Jane inquired. "I'm so glad, because I had it made over four times, and I'm almost satisfied myself now."

Jane put her arm around her neighbor's waist. She looked saucily at Brand.

"Your wife never lets me forget that she is five years my junior," she said. "But it's sweet of her just the same."

And with this strictly feminine paradox the exchange of civilities ceased. They heard Bob's step on the stairs. He shook hands with both.

"Awfully sorry to have kept you waiting," he said, "but with two such charming ladies I guess we won't mind entering a little late, eh, Brand?"

"They look good to me," the millionaire agreed. "Let's go."

Mrs. Brand was, as Jane had said, five years her junior. Just how this fact ever came to be openly established is one of those mysteries that must go unsolved. Of course the one never referred to it and the other never forgot it. But it existed and it served as a sort of balance wheel to their respective attractions. For Jane was of a type to which a few years one way or the other neither add nor detract from beauty. If the discrepancy had been the other way it might have been noticeable. Mrs. Brand was a blonde and a beautiful one. She was nearly as tall as Jane and slightly more robust. Blue eyes and fair skinned, with cheeks that drew their color from a perfect constitution, not from the embellishing touch of rouge.

No lady's maid in all New York had an easier task than Mrs. Brand's and no modiste's art was better rewarded than hers. In the clubs where it was common talk that Brand's patronizing hand had raised Reynolds out of obscurity, this striking beauty of the millionaire's wife served as a sort of antidote to gossip. At least, men urged it was a toss-up, and if Reynolds lost he was a fool. From point of eye they were a wonderful pair and in that respect their husbands were not far behind them. At the opera or among the first nighters there wasn't a quartette in the city that attracted more attention. Brand was fairly popular in the clubs, although he spent but little time in them. Reynolds, the new comer, was more so. He was a natural mixer and, whether he felt it or not, he maintained a cordial attitude toward new friends that made him welcome. Time did not press on Bob, either. He had declined Brand's offer to go into the millionaire's firm and he drew his living from the street. Brand had made good as a prognosticator. Money did make money. From the time Bob buried his consciousness and hurried over to New York after his wife and went from her to Brand, he had had no cause to complain. Forty thousand dollars was a good grab stake and with Brand's assistance he had doubled it.

Only one thing worried Reynolds. His wife's mania for money was insatiable.

"Jane," he had told her a few weeks ago, "we've got a fortune. Do you realize it? Eighty thousand dollars. Eighty thousand dollars and a fifteen thousand dollar home. Let's quit and go away. With the rest from this place we'd have an income of seven or eight thousand and we could run all over the world on that. You know how we used to hope and plan for the day when we could see something of other places. Not London and Paris and Berlin, but something really different. I'd like to go down into Africa and India after some of that big game. Why, I never shot anything in my life larger than a rabbit and I'd rather kill a lion than get all the money in the subtreasury. Come on, what do you say? You love the outdoor life and we'll have the time of our lives."

But Jane demurred.

"Let's wait a little while, Bob. We've only just begun. Look what Brand's got and he isn't hunting lions."

"No," he said resignedly, "he isn't hunting them and he couldn't hit one if he did. You got me into Brand's class to some extent, but you'll never make him my model of a man. I can cross his bridges but I've got some of my own that make him stop and look. He found that out at school."

He wasn't boasting. There was more of sadness than arrogance in his tone, but Jane noticed it; she held her peace. It was from that day that the bottle with the silver casing needed much redilling in the Reynolds' home.

Corn Comes Off as Easy as You Please!

"Gets-It" Being Used by Millions!

It is the first time that a real, sure-as-grace corn cure has ever been discovered. "GETS-IT" is the new corn-cure based on an entirely new principle. It is a new, different formula, never successfully imitated. It makes corns shrivel and then vanish. Two drops do the work. You don't bundle up your toe any more with sticky tape and plaster that press down on the poor corn—no more flesh-eating valves that don't "stay put," no more hacking at corns with knives or razors, no more bleeding or danger of blood poison. No more limping around for days with sore corns, no more corn pain.

"GETS-IT" is now the biggest selling corn cure in the world. Use it on any hard or soft corn, wart, callus or bunion. Tonight's night.

"GETS-IT" is sold by druggists everywhere. 25 cents a bottle, or sent direct by E. Lawrence & Co., Chicago.

place we'd have an income of seven or eight thousand and we could run all over the world on that. You know how we used to hope and plan for the day when we could see something of other places. Not London and Paris and Berlin, but something really different. I'd like to go down into Africa and India after some of that big game. Why, I never shot anything in my life larger than a rabbit and I'd rather kill a lion than get all the money in the subtreasury. Come on, what do you say? You love the outdoor life and we'll have the time of our lives."

But Jane demurred.

"Let's wait a little while, Bob. We've only just begun. Look what Brand's got and he isn't hunting lions."

"No," he said resignedly, "he isn't hunting them and he couldn't hit one if he did. You got me into Brand's class to some extent, but you'll never make him my model of a man. I can cross his bridges but I've got some of my own that make him stop and look. He found that out at school."

Dinner Stories

Mrs. Mason's colored washerwoman, Martha, was complaining of her husband's health.

"Why is he sick, Martha?" asked Mrs. Mason.

"He's vey polly, ma'am, vey polly," answered the woman. "He's got the exclamationary rheumatism."

"You mean inflammatory, Martha," said the patron. "Exclamationary means to cry out."

"Yes, ma'am," replied Martha, with conviction; "dat's what it is. He hollers all the time."

Smith was rambling down the street one afternoon, with a large smile floating over his features, when he met a friend.

"Why that beautiful smile, old man," asked the friend, pausing to clutch Smith's hand. "Have you stacked up against great happiness?"

"Yes," merrily answered Smith. "My next-door neighbor sent me a box of patent axle grease, with a nice little note asking me to use it on my lawn mower."

"Happiest!" exclaimed the friend, wondering. "Do you call a sarcastic stunt like that happiness?"

"Yes," was the grateful response of Smith. "I sent the axle grease back to him with a suggestion that he might use it on his daughter's voice."

Could Not Move Him. Having tried unsuccessfully various highly recommended plans for dislodging selfish passengers from the coveted seats, the woman who swung from a strap in front of the sandy man tried talking "at" him to her husband.

As a peroration to her harangue she said: "If you, James, should ever be piggyback enough to sit down where there was a woman in the car left standing I would never speak to you again as long I live." The sandy man looked up then. "Lucky lad," he said. "Not many of us could purchase peace at that price."

ASTHMA AND HAY FEVER A GUARANTEED RELIEF

"I have arranged with Smith's Pharmacy, 14 West Milwaukee St., that every sufferer from Asthma, Hay Fever or Bronchial Asthma in Janesville can try my treatment entirely at my risk," Dr. Rudolph Schiffmann announces. He says: "Buy a 50-cent package of my Asthmador, try it, and if it does not afford you immediate relief, or if you do not find it the best remedy you have ever used, take it back to Smith's Pharmacy and they will return your money, cheerfully and without any question whatever. After seeing the grateful relief it has afforded in hundreds of cases, which had been considered incurable, and which had been given up in despair, I know what it will do. I am so sure that it will do the same with others that I am not afraid to guarantee it will relieve instantaneously. The drugists handling Asthmador will return your money if you say so. You are to be the sole judge and under this positive guarantee, absolutely no risk is run in buying Asthmador."

PAY LARGER AMOUNT INTO PENSION FUND

County's Share for Present Year is $1,988.21, or $145 More Than a Year Ago.

Rock county school teachers have paid in a total of $1,988.21 into the teachers' pension fund during the year just closing which is $145 more than last year, according to the figures at the county treasurer's office. Mr. Livemore will forward a check for the amount collected in Rock county to the state treasurer some time this week. With the exception of seven towns there was an increase in the amount turned in for every town, city and village. This is due very probably to the fact that the law is now compulsory and now elective as it was several years ago, and all new teachers must make contributions.

The city of Janesville makes the largest contribution of $568.42 against $526.02 a year ago. Beloit is next with $554.54 against $535.37 last year. Edgerton pays $121.86 against $92.55 a year ago and Evansville pays in but $61.18 against $49.05 last year. There is a large decrease for the village of Milton this year's contribution being $23.85 against $52.74 last year. The

BABY'S HEAD IN WATERY PIMPLES

Top Almost Solid Eruption. Pimples in Patches. Would Inflammation and Fester. Hair Fell Out in Bunches. Used Cuticura Soap and Ointment. Head Well.

R. R. No. 1, Kyles, Ohio.—"My baby's head when about a year old began to break out with small watery pimples causing her head to itch. She would scratch her head till the blood came causing the top of her head to be in almost a solid eruption. The pimples at first were nearly as large as a pea and in patches which would inflame and fester and when they would come open would leave a kind of raw scales there for a few days. When it dried up it would leave scales on her head that caused her hair to fall out just in great bunches.

"Her head was this way for nearly a month and I had washed her head with different kinds of soap and used different salves but to no success. One day I happened to see Cuticura Soap and also Cuticura Ointment advertised in a paper and I ordered a sample of each. They seemed to help her head so much that I purchased a box of Cuticura Soap and a box of Cuticura Ointment and in two weeks' time her head was sound and well. Her hair had stopped falling out and was also free from dandruff." (Signed) Mrs. J. L. West, Feb. 20, 1914.

Dark Hair and Greatness.

Dark brown to black is the prevailing hue on the heads of great men. A list of fifty names has been compiled in which the color of hair is given by biographers, and ninety per cent. are dark brown or black. There is not, strange to say, a single mention of premature grayness, nor a single case of that ashen brown color known as "singed" or "mouse colored."

FOR LOOKING ALOFT

A Reflector on the Field Glasses for Observing Aerial Flights.

At one of the aeroplane and alighting rendezvous of Europe, a "stand" has been erected by which the observers may watch the movements of the machines in the air without the back-breaking necessity of keeping the head bent at right angles with the spine. This was accomplished by building a platform on a suitable angle on which the patrons of the place stretch themselves on their backs and watch the machines to their heart's content. This arrangement, however, was not regarded as a perfect one for the reason that it interfered greatly with the social feature, which is an important part of these meets, and then again a lady did not always appear at her best under these circumstances, and for this reason they did not avail themselves of the advantages of the structure. An entirely new device to all this was recently designed as an attachment to a pair of ordinary field glasses by the aid of which the gyrations of an aeroplane may be watched from start to finish without fatigue more than that occasioned by holding the glasses to the eyes. The reflector is secured by the frame carrying the glasses at a point opposite the objectives, and is adjustable to the degree that the movements of the air machines may be followed closely whether they are overhead or some distance away toward the horizon.

REFLECTING ATTACHMENT FOR FIELD GLASSES.

Wooden-Legged Duck Thrives. A wooden-legged duck lives and thrives at Alrvault, a little village in Bordeaux, France. At a recent meeting of the local natural history society, the chairman told of the duck which had its leg crushed in a stable door. Its owner, a peasant woman, amputated the leg and replaced it with a wooden one which she manufactured herself. The duck is now able to get about the farmyard with perfect ease.

Bragi.

In the Scandinavian mythology Bragi was the god of poetry. He was a warlike personage, who fought all verse but that which sang with the praises of gods and warriors. Iduna, Bragi's wife, kept certain apples in a casket, which the gods, when they felt age approaching, had only to taste in order to regain their youth. On the approach of the great Twilight at the end of time, this trait was to lose its power.

GROSS AS TWO STICKS

By ALLIE FORD.

"There!" exclaimed the little stenographer, taking her watch from her belt and setting it in front of her. "I'm going to hold my breath till it's five o'clock and then I'm going to run! I've always felt above watching the clock, but I'm beginning to understand a few things! Besides, I've had a horrible time today trying to get ready for the Fourth."

The bookkeeper slid his ledgers back on the shelf. "Now what's the matter?" he asked, with an exaggerated air of resignation.

"Oh, I'm tired to a frazzle and as gross as two sticks!" The little stenographer exploded.

"Well, don't take it out on me!" objected the bookkeeper amiably. "What has happened, anyway?"

"Everything!" returned the little stenographer dramatically. "I've been turned into a housekeeper, general utility man—anything but the stenographer I thought I was, the stenographer trying to get things shipshape in preparation for the holiday."

"This morning I had to devote two solid hours to checking up his club bills for Mr. Gray! And my files a mile behind, waiting for a clear minute! If those men don't hear my typewriting machine rattle they think I've nothing to do! And they bother around for an hour to think up something to help me pass the time. Mr. Gray smiled generously when he handed me his bills, as if he were giving me the time of my life by permitting me to see how he spends his money—and incidentally keep his personal accounts for him!"

"When I finished that Mr. Nicholas called me in and said his wife had asked him if I wouldn't be so kind as to write out her club programs for the whole of next year! The club was about to adjourn until fall and it was saving money by doing its own programs instead of having them printed. Mr. Nicholas beamed on me as if he were conferring an honor upon me that could never be estimated in letting me get so close to his wife's club as to spend a few hours writing out the club programs! Then she'll feel so right—money when spending on charity the money I've saved for her, when the full credit—well, it belongs elsewhere, if I do say it myself!"

"Just when I was working as hard as I could to get that finished, so that I could get started all that awful filing, who should come out and look over my shoulder but Mr. Brown himself! I could tell that he thought I was presuming a good deal in writing something that was not business letters, so I hastened to explain what it was I was doing. That gave him an idea and he went back into his office and returned presently with his silk gloves."

"Won't you please, when you have a little time, just catch these threads together?" he asked. And he showed me fingers of his gloves that were almost entirely gone at the tips! "Catch them together!" Why, I had positively to crochet new tips on them! And I didn't dare do anything but my very carefullest work for him."

"That's the way it's been all day long! Mr. Gray asked me to pack his suitcase—from that drawer where he keeps shirts and collars, you know—for he had to go out of town for the Fourth. And while I was at that Mr. Vandewater had a bright idea. He suggested that I phone a reservation for him—and then run down and get it! And—oh, well, what's the use? I'm going home!"

She half arose from her chair. As she did so Mr. Brown emerged hastily from his office.

"Here," he said, "I've got to run for my train. Will you shut my desk and close the window and sign the letters I left there?"

The little stenographer nodded and said no word.

"And," called the bookkeeper, as he poked his head back through the door as he was leaving, "don't forget to put the cat out and wind the clock."

Delmonico Meal.

He had heard several old miners who had for many years been living a rough frontier life discussing what they would do when they had "made their piles" and could return with riches "to the states."

"Well," said the grizzled old veteran, "I know what I'll do. I'll go as straight as the car'll take me to New York, and when I get there I'll make a bee line for Delmonico's and I'll get the blankety-blankest dinner that money can buy. I don't care if it costs me $50, I'll have it."

"Now, what do you think you would order," queried Fred, with some curiosity, "if you were to go into Delmonico's for a $50 dinner?"

"Well, I dunno; but I guess I'd have some ham and eggs—yes, I would; I'd have some ham and eggs!"

How Canebad Got Name.

An American who says he has "nothing to do between drinks," has estimated that Carlsbad is now entering upon the five hundred and fifty-sixth season—at least, if there is any faith to be placed in the old chroniclers. They ascribe the discovery of the medicinal properties of the "Sprudel" to Charles IV, in 1358—or, rather, to the pack of this famous huntsman, which, while in hot pursuit of a stag, fell into the boiling caldron and had to be fished out more dead than alive. Hence the "Caris" and hence the "Bad."

Queer Fable About Cotton.

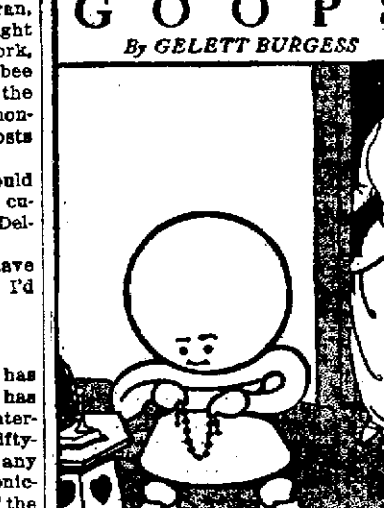

When cotton first came to Europe to make its principal center in Lancashire it was the subject of the quaint and wonderful fable of the "Vegetable Lamb." The fluffy white fibers of the bursting cotton pod so resembled sheep's wool that travelers reported that in Tartary there grew a shrub the fruit or boll of which contained "within a little Beate in Fleesche, in Bone and Bloode, as though it were a little Lamb, with outer wool." After the lamb had been eaten the wool was made into cloth, continued this story, which is the earliest European account of the manufacture of cotton.

Bees Make Own Hours of Labor.

Some bees apparently work on the eight hour schedule, others on a ten or twelve hour basis for their working day. A bee keeper says that one of his bee colonies begins its day's labor at sunrise and continues till after dark, making a working day two or three hours longer than any other colony in over a hundred. No two colonies of bees, says this apiarist, are alike.

CROWDS CHEER HERO OF FORMER WARS IN LONDON STREETS

Earl Roberts and his daughter, Aileen Mary, receiving ovation after leaving war office.

"Little Bobo," as he is fondly and familiarly called throughout Great Britain, is in a serious mood, for the experience of the grizzled and aged veteran, now eighty-two years old, in the campaigns in India and the Boer war, has taught him the horrors of armed conflict. Earl Roberts is one of the commanding figures in the present war between England and Germany, his counsel always being sought before any important movement is made by the English army now on European soil.

THRIFT Join the Thrift Club THRIFT
SAVINGS CLUB SAVINGS CLUB

SAVE FOR YOUR DEFINITE NEEDS. MAKE SAVING EASY.

Everyone has certain unusually large payments which he must make each year, and which he knows must be made, and he knows it a year in advance. To meet this almost universal need we have organized the greatest savings system ever put into a bank; we call it "Thrift Savings System." The man who has an insurance premium to meet, the family who want to get ready for the annual fuel bill, the man or woman, young or old, who wants to be in a position next year to go to the Panama Exposition, or to enjoy some less expensive vacation, or the young couple who want systematically to save to build a home—all these people we will welcome to the Thrift Savings Club. The system has been worked out for our patrons, and there are hundreds of young men and women and boys and girls whom we will welcome as members.

You may start with 2c, or 1c, and increase it each week the same amount, or you may, of course, reverse it and start with $1.00 or 50c, and reduce it each week 2c or 1c, as the case may be. You may do the same with the 5c card. Pay 5c the first week, and increase it 5c each week for fifty weeks, or reduce, commencing with $2.50, reducing the payment 5c each week until the last payment is only 5c. Or you may deposit a certain amount each week, 25c, 50c, $1.00 or $2.00. Any of these various plans may be used, and in all cases your deposits will be returned to you at the end of the year, and if the payments are made promptly weekly or monthly interest will be added at 3%. You can pay any amount that will suit your needs, and you may commence any month. You should select the month in which your large annual payment is due, and commence one year in advance. Anyone can have as many cards as they wish, and may prepare for one or more of the annual expenses mentioned. No other banks provide this service and no man is so rich and few so poor that it may not be utilized to advantage. We are performing a service to the community in providing the Thrift Savings System.

Come in and let us explain it to you. The plan is for everybody. Save now for your definite future expenses. Have a definite savings plan
